Matthieu Frances' biography

Graduated from the IAD film school (Brussels) in 2004, Matthieu Frances is a scriptwriter, a director, a music composer and a film producer.

His first short film Paradis Express was selected at the New York International Independent Film festival (USA, 2004) and won the Best Fiction Award at the Het Grote Ongeduld! Festival (Belgium, 2004)

Right after getting out of film school, Matthieu France founded the production company Playtime Films with two other Belgian directors. He's directing several commercials as well as three music videos of the Belgian band Austin Lace. From 2008, he's producing Playtime's first films.

His cinematographic influences are very diverse: from Terrence Malick to Sam Peckinpah and from Takeshi Kitano to Jean Cocteau.
